By car

There is limited parking in Silverdale. You can park at the end of Shore Road on the shore itself where a donations box is provided, but beware of Morecambe Bay's fast, incoming tide! Other parking is provided in small pockets along the roads and lanes but please do not park in passing places, pavements, or where the road is narrow. Across the road from RSPB Leighton Moss is a small, free car park for RSPB visitors, and there are small car parks at Eaves Wood and Gait Barrows. At Bank Holiday weekends, you may find extra temporary car parking provided around the village, which will be signposted. There have been recent incidents where parked cars have blocked gates, driveways, and Emergency Services access, so please be very careful where you park in the village.

 on Morecambe Bay'

A walk around the village

Follow the circular trail or complete in stages.

Start the walk at any point for a glimpse of landscape change; the strange limestone rock formations and enjoy the fascinating flora and fauna.

If starting from the National Trust car park at Eaves Wood, follow the marked route to the Queen Victoria Jubilee Memorial known as The Pepperpot. When you reach the signpost with four directional fingers, take the left path. Look for a gap in the wall ahead to 'Inman's Field'. ①

"I ploughed this field with my father, and we grew oats, wheat and potatoes. Now you wouldn't even recognise it as a field." John Walker

Return to the signpost and continue up to The Pepperpot. ②

"My grandfather Chris Hall was commissioned to build the Jubilee Memorial. He recalled that within weeks of completion it was struck by lightning and had to be rebuilt. You can still see the copper strip he put in as a lightning conductor." Brian Dobson www.nationaltrust.org.uk/arnside-and-silverdale/features/eaves-wood

Continue on the path across the next small road. When you reach Cove Road, turn right, follow the road and take the next lane on the left. Pass by a row of houses, which used to be fishermen's cottages, and carry on down to the Cove (owned by the RSPB). ④ Admire the phreatic cave (formed under the water) and the emergent spring water on the beach from Lambert's Meadow (later in walk).

Go through the small gateway on the left to take the cliff top path across The Lots on Bank House Farm (be aware of livestock in the fields). The Lots are renowned for limestone flowers including green-winged orchids in May and Autumn Lady's Tresses in August. At the end on Stankelt Road is the parish boundary stone. ⑤

"The stone on the left marked a township boundary between Silverdale and Warton-with-Lindeth. The road ahead, once part of Warton was lit by three streetlights, while the rest of Silverdale was in the dark." Barry Ayre

Turn right, down to the shore, passing The Silverdale Hotel. ⑥ "When the travelling circus came to the field opposite, there used to be a bear on a bit of string on the steps of the Silverdale Hotel." Walter Burrow

ROUTE CONDITIONS: a gentle amble, uneven ground in parts, some slight slopes, one flight of steps. NOTE: KEEP DOGS ON LEADS.

Distance: 3.5 miles (5 kilometres) Facilities: Toilets and refreshments in Silverdale village

Hazards: Take care on the roads: no pavements in many places

★ Check tide timetables as parking may be unsuitable at high tide

Enjoy the pleasant atmosphere of the shore. ⑦ In days gone by, from here, cockles were harvested at low tide three to four miles out in the Bay and filled sacks brought back by horse and cart. Fishermen walked out to stake nets for flukes or, at high tide, took their sail boats out to catch flukes and prawns. Steamers brought visitors from Morecambe and Grange-over-Sands and local fishermen would make a few pence ferrying them ashore or providing trips during the summer.

Turn back and follow the road left to the centre of the village (shops, toilets and refreshments). Continue through the village to the school, passing the Gaskell Memorial Hall ⑧, opened in 1931 and named to revere the novelist, Elizabeth Gaskell. Many aspects of the hall were designed to accommodate the Silverdale Village Players, who celebrate their 100th anniversary in 2022. You also pass Bleasdale House ⑨, built in 1860 for the Sharp family and previously known as Delamere. The building was a private residence until World War I, during which it became a Red Cross Hospital. It was converted to a Convalescent Home by the Bradford Dyers' Association and is now a specialist school.

Just past the primary school, enjoy the view across Townsfield ⑩ to the Pepperpot.

"Townsfield (in the foreground) purchased by villagers for the National Trust, used to grow arable crops while King William's Hill (now Eaves Wood) was open grazing." Bernard Fryer

Just across the road is the Parish Church of St John. ⑪ A Grade Two Listed Building, the church was designed by Ball and Elce of Manchester and much of the building work was funded by the Boddington family. It opened in 1886 and its interior has many interesting features.

Retrace your steps 100 metres to the footpath beside number 5 Emesgate Lane (The Old Forge) leading to Springbank. Walk to the right and past The Village Institute ⑫, which opened in 1907 on a central site, easily accessible for all parts of Silverdale, in Barker's Field. It was built to be 'a home for the men's social club and various lectures, entertainments and other function of a non-political, non-sectarian and temperance character' but today holds many community events.

At the top of Springbank, note the two standing Doric columns ⑬ and turn left into Stankelt Road. Look to your left for an intact 'Spite' wall, built in 1885 as a result of a dispute between neighbours. ⑭ Continue along the road and turn left to The Green ⑮ and follow the signs to Bottoms Lane. Turn left and look for the path on the right to Lambert's Meadow ⑯. Enjoy the quiet of Burton Well Wood ⑰ (take care on the limestone pavement which is slippery when wet). Cross the bridge in the meadow and climb the steps to Bank Well. ⑱
